

Authors

Loretta Fabbri is full professor in Teaching and Learning Methods at University of Siena. She is Head of the Department of Education, Human Sciences and Intercultural Communication, (University of Siena) and she is delegate of the Rector for the soft-skills programs within the Teaching & Learning Center. Her research is focused on theory and methods of transformative learning, communities of practice, and post-qualitative research. She is co-founder of Italian Transformative Learning Network; and works with private and public institutions for continuing education programs.

Rubina Petruccioli, is a sexology counselor, member of the FISS's Register. She took a Master's Degree in Educational Research and Pedagogical Counseling at the University of Siena, with a thesis entitled "Pedagogie della sessualità. Percorsi di consulenza educativa" (Pedagogies of Sexuality: Educational Counseling Course). She also previously achieved a Bachelor's Degree in Educational Research at the same University, with a thesis entitled "Diversa abilità, stessi diritti. La sessualità nell'adulto diversamente abile" (Different Ability, Same Rights. Sexuality in differently-abled adults).

Francesca Anello is an Associate professor in Didactics and Special Pedagogy at the University of Palermo. She carried out researches on learning assessment instruments and on teaching practices for the development of oral expression. She has focused on promoting reading and writing toward exercising critical thinking at school. She also coordinated several teachers' training initiatives.

Sergio Bellantonio, PhD, is Postdoctoral Research Fellow in General & Social Pedagogy at the Department of Movement Sciences and Wellness of University of Naples "Parthenope". His research interests mainly concern the relationship among identity, corporeality and education, sport pedagogy and guidance, such as pedagogical devices in a systemic and critical-reflective perspective. Among his last books: La vita dopo lo sport. Orientare le transizioni identitarie, PensaMultimedia, Lecce-Rovato, 2018.

Elena Bortolotti is Associate Professor in Pedagogy and Special Education at the University of Trieste. She is interested in disability and training in the socio-educational professions.

Roberta Moro is Graduated in Educational Sciences at the University of Trieste, she is also a nurse at the Azienda Sanitaria Universitaria Integrata di Trieste and a clinical tutor for the Degree Course in Nursing.

Valeria Caggiano has a Ph.D. in Labor and Human Resources Research and Psychology; she is a Professor of Labor and Organizational Psychology at the University of Roma Tre. Her studies are on teaching competences, universities and entrepreneurship education, pedagogy of innovation in a global scenario.

Francesco Cappa is a researcher and Assistant Professor at the University of Milano-Bicocca, where he teaches Methodology of Education and runs a permanent theatre workshop since 2001. He is Charter Member of the Centro Studi Riccardo Massa, and of the ORBIS TERTIUS Research Centre on Contemporary Imaginary. Graduated in Philosophy, MA in Aesthetics, he has been studying temporality, performance and construction of self since his PhD in Education. He has a number of published books in Italian.

Manuela Palma is a researcher fellow at the University of Milano Bicocca. She teaches Metodology of Education and is member of the Centro Studi Riccardo Massa. She carried out reseracher in educational and organizational field using the methodological approach of Clinica della formazione.

Marika D'Oria is a lacanian pedagogist with a PhD in Education and Communication. She is co-chair of the “Education, complexity, and professional identity” area at the Italian Association of Systems Medicine and Healthcare (ASSIMSS).

Diana Carmela Di Gennaro is researcher in Dydactic and special pedagogy in the Department of human, philosophical and educational sciences at University of Salerno.

Saverio Fontani teaches Special Education at the University of Florence. Recent publications: I Disturbi dello Spettro Autistico. Percorsi per la didattica inclusiva (2014); Comunicazione Aumentativa Alternativa e Disabilità (2016); Didattica speciale per sindromi a base genetica. La Sindrome di Williams. (2017).

Tiziana Franceschini is a developmental psychologist and psychotherapist, teacher of postural gym and theaterdance, passionate about martial arts and oriental philosophy. From the integration of these different personal experiences comes an intense research activity in the field of body psychotherapy, which leads to the formalization of the method Il corpo in relazione. Basic points are the support of psychophysiological awareness and the bodily observation of attachment models, particularly useful for practitioners of helping relationships.

Claudio Melacarne, Ph.D, is Associate Professor of Social Pedagogy at University of Siena. He is interested in studying professional development processes in organizations using educational and training research methodologies. He is Co-director of the international journal Educational Reflective Practices. He works as a consultant in public and private companies. He currently teaches Foundation of Social Pedagogy and Methodologies of Educational Research and Training. He is the coordinator of the Educational Sciences and Organizational Consulting program (MSc) at the Università degli Studi di Siena.

Alessandra Romano, Ph.D. is Researcher in the Department of Education at University of Siena. Her research is focused on practices and methods for professional community development. She teaches ‘Diversity Management’ and ‘Theory and method of inclusive education’ at University of Siena. Her current research uses qualitative research methods for promoting professional identity development and effective collaboration for learning and performance in workplaces. She has a particular strand of research on experience-based methods, such as art-based and performative methodologies.

Alessandra Priore, PhD in Psychological and Pedagogical Sciences at the University of Naples Federico II and Post-Doc in General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Naples Parthenope. Her current research interests regard the teachers and parents education, the guidance in Higher Education in according to the perspective of reflexivity and narrative methodologies.

Matteo Tracchi is PhD Candidate at the Human Rights Centre of the University of Padova, Italy. His PhD research focuses on citizenship and human rights education. Prior to this, Matteo worked for the International Secretariat of Amnesty International in London, UK. He has extensive experience in conducting human rights research, as well as campaigning, policy, advocacy and capacity building activities with a variety of constituencies at local, national, regional and international level. He also worked in both formal and non-formal education settings with a focus on his main areas of interest, namely human rights education, education for democratic citizenship, children’s rights and youth participation.

Iolanda Zollo is assistant professor of general didactic and special pedagogy in the Department of human, philosophical and educational sciences at University of Salerno.